Processes are the unit of execution in an operating system.

The scheduler chooses the next process to run.